a detailed look at the british world of science fiction in the 1950s john wade grew up in the 1950s a decade that has since been dubbed the golden age of science fiction it was a wonderful decade for the genre but not so great for young fans with early television broadcasts being advertised for the first time as unsuitable for children and the inescapable barrier of the x certificate in the cinema barring anyone under the age of sixteen the author had only the radio to fall back on and that turned out to be more fertile for the budding sf fan than might otherwise have been thought which is probably why as he grew older rediscovering those old tv broadcasts and films that had been out of bounds when he was a kid took on a lure that soon became an obsession for him the super accuracy and amazing technical quality of today s science fiction films pale into insignificance beside the radio early tv and b picture films about people who built rockets in their back gardens and flew them to lost planets or tales of aliens who wanted to take over if not our entire world then at least our bodies this book is a personal account of john wade s fascination with the genre across all the entertainment media in which it appeared the sort of stuff he reveled in as a young boy and still enjoys today not only a well researched book grounded in hundreds of sources but also an unmistakable labor of love new york journal of books perfect for reference or browsing this volume includes some 80 authors and explores in excerpts of criticism from books essays and reviews their work and influence throughout the coverage is international and the emphasis is on the many rare and insightful comments that are made on these authors who are increasingly accorded literary status and regarded in the critical mainstream aliens flying saucers esp the bermuda triangle antigravity are we talking about science fiction or pseudoscience sometimes it is difficult to tell the difference both pseudoscience and science fiction sf are creative endeavours that have little in common with academic science beyond the superficial trappings of jargon and subject matter the most obvious difference between the two is that pseudoscience is presented as fact not fiction yet like sf and unlike real science pseudoscience is driven by a desire to please an audience in this case people who want to believe this has led to significant cross fertilization between the two disciplines sf authors often draw on real pseudoscientific theories to add verisimilitude to their stories while on other occasions pseudoscience takes its cue from sf the symbiotic relationship between ufology and hollywood being a prime example of this this engagingly written well researched and richly illustrated text explores a wide range of intriguing similarities and differences between pseudoscience and the fictional science found in sf andrew may has a degree in natural sciences from cambridge university and a phd in astrophysics from manchester university after many years in academia and the private sector he now works as a freelance writer and scientific consultant he has written pocket biographies of newton and einstein as well as contributing to a number of popular science books he has a lifelong interest in science fiction and has had several articles published in forteen times magazine an exciting collection of short stories showcasing the very best of classic science fiction writing h g wells s the greatest science fiction novels stories is a masterful anthology that encapsulates the innovative spirit of early 20th century science fiction this collection showcases wells s prescient imagination and narrative prowess featuring notable works such as the time machine and the war of the worlds his unique blend of vivid storytelling and philosophical inquiry not only reflects contemporary concerns about technology and society but also foreshadows myriad future developments in both science and literature the literary style is characterized by rich descriptions compelling character arcs and a provocative exploration of societal dilemmas placing wells firmly in the lineage of speculative fiction that challenges readers to ponder the implications of progress wells often hailed as the father of science fiction drew upon his background in biology and journalism as well as his experiences in a rapidly industrializing world his works are a lens into the anxieties of his time concerns about imperialism class struggle and the moral ramifications of scientific advancement resulting in narratives that are as relevant today as they were at the dawn of the modern age this anthology is an essential read for anyone interested in the foundations of science fiction offering not only entertainment but also profound insights into human nature and the future readers will find in these pages a rich tapestry that inspires reflection and discussion making it an indispensable addition to both casual readers and literary scholars alike winner of the 2023 science fiction research association sfra book award 2022 longlist nominee for the best non fiction award from the british science fiction association equipping space cadets primary science fiction for young children argues for the benefits and potential of primary science fiction or science fiction for children under twelve years old science fiction for children is often disregarded due to common misconceptions of childhood when children are culturally portrayed as natural and simple they seem like a poor audience for the complex scientific questions brought up by the best science fiction the books and the children who read them tell another story using three empirical studies and over 350 children s books including if i had a robot dog bugs in space and commander toad in space equipping space cadets presents interdisciplinary evidence that science fiction and children are compatible after all primary science fiction literature includes many high quality books that cleverly utilize the features of children s literature formats in order to fit large science fiction questions into small packages in the best of these books authors make science fiction questions accessible and relevant to children of various reading levels and from diverse backgrounds and identities equipping space cadets does not stop with literary analysis but also presents the voices of real children and practitioners the book features three studies a survey of teachers and librarians quantitative analysis of lending records from school libraries across the united states and coded read aloud sessions with elementary school students the results reveal how children are interested in and capable of reading science fiction but it is the adults including the most well intentioned librarians and teachers who hinder children s engagement with the genre due to their own preconceptions about the genre and children science fiction films celebrate and critique the impact of a burgeoning technology on the world s cultural political and social milieu the machine age roughly delineated by the two decades between world wars was a watershed period during which modern society entered into an ambiguous embrace with technology that continues today j p telotte carefully blends film technology cultural and genre studies to illuminate this nearly forgotten era in our cinematic history and to show through analysis of classics like the invisible ray metropolis and things to come how technology played a major role as motif actor and producer what he also discovers as he ranges among the american british russian french and german science fiction cinema as well as mainstream films figures and cultural products such as the new york world s fair is a fundamental ambivalence embedded in the films themselves about the very machine age ethos they promoted even as advances in the technical apparatus of filmmaking elevated it from mere entertainment to a medium of general communication and genuine artistic expression machine age science fiction films remained curiously distant from and often skeptical of the very machines on which their narratives focus the resulting tensions telotte writes thus seem to intersect with those implicit in a western world that was struggling with its own transition into the modern rendering the films task inevitably paradoxical and difficult first there was della the woman who wanted love she did not could not know for where love should have been was emptiness then came the poet who wanted only to please but did not know how his every effort was rejected but he could not stop trying rogers was the completion the part above all other parts that made the whole and then there was archer and the thing in his brain
